

New Pub CPH Future Publishing and Accessibility International Conference Copenhagen · June 13th-14th 2013

Future Publishing and Accessibility

International Publishing Conference in Copenhagen, June 13th-14th, 2013

The Future Publishing and Accessibility conference will highlight and encourage conversations surrounding the perspectives for the future of publishing and accessibility. Come and participate in discussions on the following topics: Will the role of publishing companies, manufacturers and libraries change dramatically? Who will be the dominating players in the future? What will be the socio-economic and commercial consequences? All keynote sessions will offer a unique chance to meet the world's leading practitioners and theorists. Join us and enhance your skill set to position you and your organization in the forefront of developments.

Keynote Speakers

Ray Kurzweil, inventor, writer and founder of Kurzweil Technologies

Ray Kurzweil was the principal developer of the first CCD flat-bed scanner, the first omni-font optical character recognition and the first print-to-speech reading machine for the blind. Ray Kurzweil is currently Director of Engineering, Google Inc.

Jimmy Wales, Founder of Wikipedia

Jimmy Donal Wales is an Internet entrepreneur, wiki pioneer and technology visionary. He is best known as the Founder of Wikipedia, a free web-based encyclopedia, written collaboratively by the people who use it as well as the Wikimedia Foundation.

Other Featured Speakers

- Michael Seadle, Humboldt University in Berlin, DE
- Bill Rosenblatt, President, GiantSteps Media Technology Strategies, US
- Alicia Wise, Director of Universal Access, Elsevier, UK
- Erik Van Rompay, President, Gutenberg Technology, FR
- Inga Lundén, City Librarian/ Library Director, Stockholm Public Library, SE
- Gunther Kress, Professor of Semiotics and Education, University of London, UK

Useful facts

Early bird registration fee (until March 31st, 2013): EUR 660. Registration is now open, please sign up at newpubcph.org.